

About Us

In November 2004, Willie McCray founded the Women's Blue Chip Basketball League as a developmental organization to aid female basketball athletes in their goals to become professional players through ministry and competitive play. The WBCBL has found a way to provide players with top rate competition, exposure to pro scouts, and offer spiritual mentorship. The league has grown to have teams in 23 states and totaling over 40 teams nationwide in North America.

Our Mission Statement:

"The WBCBL's mission is to provide highly competitive basketball for women age 20 and older, while creating opportunities for economic and educational advancement in local communities."

There is a huge void to fill for the players that aren't selected for the WNBA or International teams. When collegiate players finish with their college eligibility, they are often left with nowhere to go. And that's where we (the WBCBL), come in. The WBCBL give players that continued opportunity to play basketball on a highly competitive level.

Not only does the WBCBL help players fulfill their dreams, but we also give a boost to the economy for local communities by offering team ownership for business-minded individuals and by creating seasonal/part-time jobs. Each basketball game employs local teenagers and adults to staff at least 5 to 8 positions per event.

Thank you for your interest in the WBCBL. Please come out to our games and show your support for women's sports and your community.

Thanks,

Mr. Willie McCray
